

The effectiveness of “violence and alienation reduction Workshops” at schools

October 2017

Background and Methodology

Execution dates

- The survey took place in October 2017

Methodology

- survey within 13 teachers whom in charge of a class
- 2 teachers from elementary schools
- 11 teachers from Junior High- and High Schools
- because the sample is so small the data can only be used as indication not for research

Goals

- Evaluation of satisfaction and contribution of the workshop to reduce violence

Growth insights

- There is high satisfaction from the workshop also within the Arab sector.
- The most significant contribution is to strengthen the emotional connection between the teacher and their students and to improve the atmosphere in the classroom. Here we had very high implications.
- Compared to the point above, the implications of the workshop on student behavior - increasing social sensitivity and reducing aggression towards others - are lower. Still we have achieved good results.

In the Arab Sector the teachers express a high degree of satisfaction with participating in the workshops.

General satisfaction with the workshops

Question : To what extent are you satisfied with the workshop on a scale of 1-10. (10 = very satisfied, 1 = not satisfied at all)

This year there is more emphasis on the method as a satisfaction factor.

The perception of the actual contribution of the Workshop

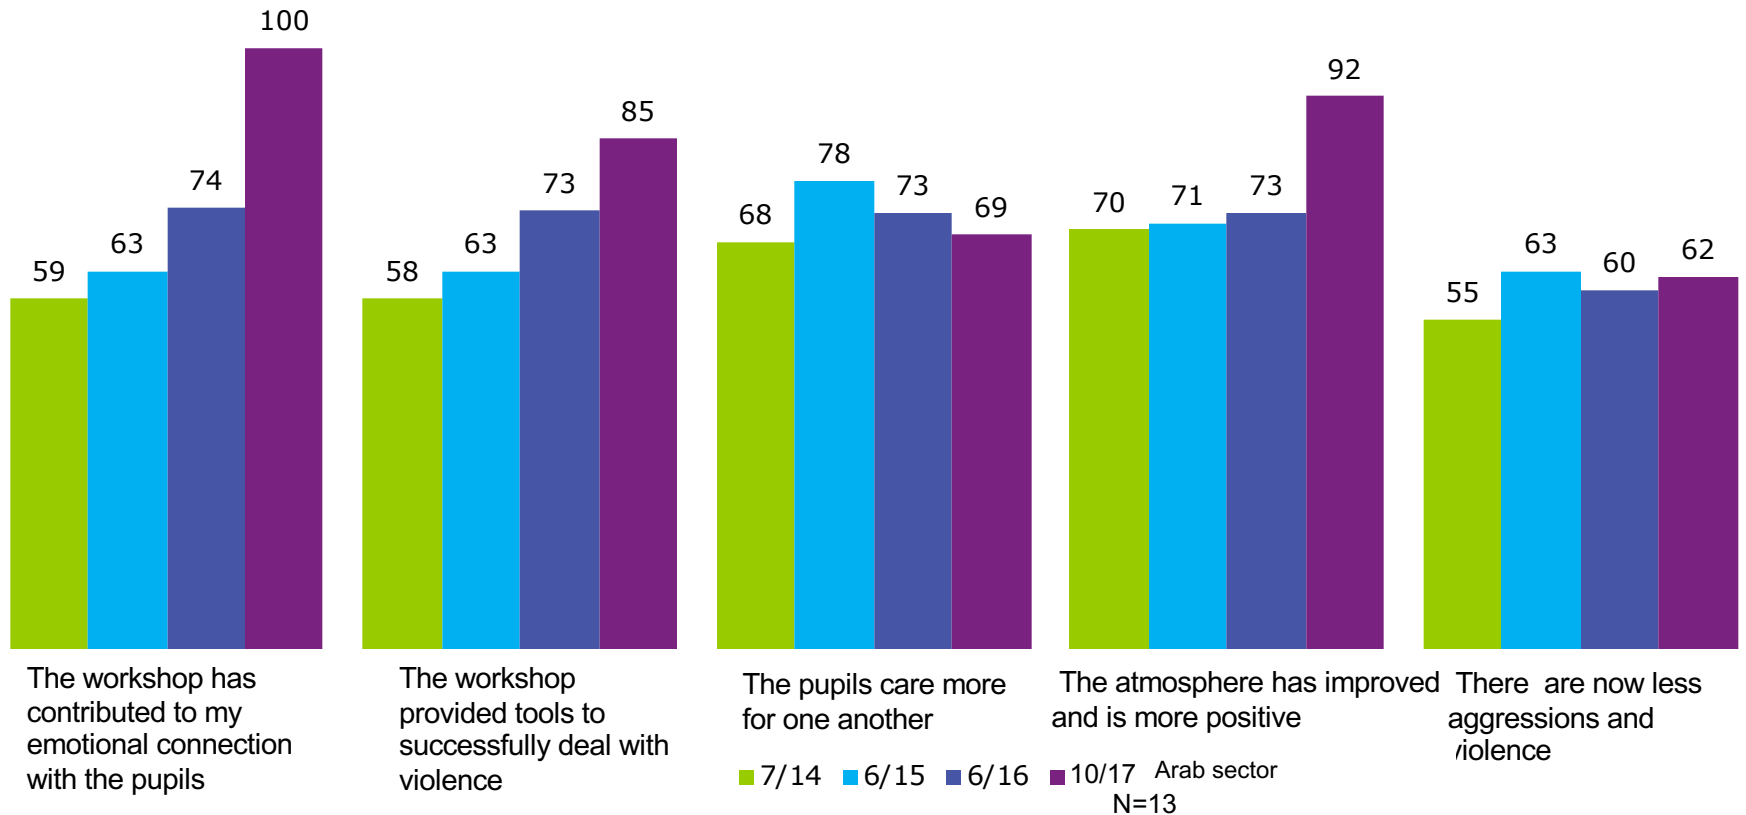

N=13

Question: What was satisfying for you in the workshop?

A continuous improvement of the emotional connection between the teachers and their students and in acquiring tools to cope with aggression and violence.
